Keys to the Door: Owners Bruce and Heather Schultz

Cary Would've Loved It Here: Dark gray suits, Felt fedoras. Long, black Cadillac limousines. Man, do we miss the days of the truly tasteful CEOs. We like to think they would've had their drivers stop here, at The Boardroom, a wood-paneled palace with billiards table front and center. Lean back in a tufted-leather barber chair and order a hot shave. Or a haircut. Or a paraffin hand dip. OK now we're back to 2007. The modern menu doesn't stop there: Think personal consultations for cut and color; 30-minute facials; a menu of massages; eyebrow and chest waxing (today's CEOs have better pecs); even glycolic peels. And here, in one multitasking moment, our guy can restock his Dopp kit with goods from Bumble & Bumble, The Art of Shaving and Dermalogica- all in a setting that happens to say "Oak Bar at The Plaza" way more than "just down the strip from a juice bar."
